How to Read Academic Papers

The literature of the course Asset Pricing fully comprises of academic papers, and not a textbook as in most Bachelor programs. This assignment and corresponding tutorial is there to help you get used to this change.

Goal

The goal of this assignment is to create an abstract of an academic paper that covers all important ingredients. With this abstract, you shouldn't have to read the whole paper anymore in preparation for the exam. Once you've done this for one paper during the tutorial, you should be able to do this individually for the other papers of the course.

Assignment

First of all, you should carefully read the paper allocated to your working group. This is:

- Group 1: Fama, E. F.; French, K. R. (1992). The Cross-Section of Expected Stock Returns. The Journal of Finance 47 (2): 427-465.
- Group 2: DeLong, B., Shleifer, A., Summers, L., and Waldmann, R. (1990). Noise Trader Risk in Financial Markets. The Journal of Political Economy 98(4): 705-738.
- Group 3: Fama, E. and MacBeth, J.D. (1973). Risk, Return, and Equilibrium: Empirical Tests. Journal of Political Economy 81(3): 607-636.

Second, prepare an abstract of maximum two pages, which contains the following sections:

1. Title, authors, journals.
2. Research question + underlying intuition
3. Main methodology
4. Data
5. Results
6. Conclusion

Bring your abstract to the tutorial on Friday September 21. In class, you and your group will discuss and compare answers. The goal is to agree on a final abstract at the end of the tutorial, which will be posted on Canvas.
